PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

September already! School daze are here and it's a good bet that every kid through third grade is at work on an essay entitled "What I Did This Summer."

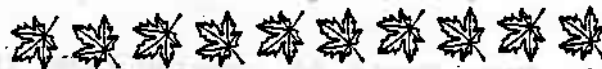

If, perchance, a teacher should ask what on earth skiers do during the long, hot No-snow season, here are some of PVS offerings: Besides the BIG ski trip to Chile and the BIG events such as theatre parties, marina picnics, crabfests, etc., there was an amazing array of events organized by Charles Huggins, Chairman of Mid-week activities.

Included were tours of the Davis Taylor Model Basin and the Oasis Winery; a golf tournament; hikes at Sugar Loaf, Cunningham Falls and the Crescent Trail; and the bike excursions to Mt. Vernon, Leesburg, and the FDR Memorial.

That's a rich and varied menu of "happenings" for a small club and we hope you sampled at least some of it.

So thanks to Charles and his gang for getting us out of the backyard hammock to participate in so many excellent adventures that are sure to get you A+ when you write your essay on what certain lucky skiers did this summer. Ski Heil!

PAST EVENTS

FREE DANCE CONCERT

Thirteen PVSers--enough to fill 3 tables--convened at 6 p.m. on Friday, August 1, to dance and swing to the strains of the Richard Bray Orchestra (the "swing band specialists") at the Bethesda Metro Center's outdoor Plaza. We also participated in the line dancing led by the capable Pinky O'Neil, with all of us--including Marty McNeill in her swirly, eye-catching skirt--trying to keep up with Pinky in the Electric Slide, Funky Cowboy, Macarena, and something to a particularly insistent Samba beat.

She finally elicited a volunteer--Jack Peoples--as her co-instructor. Filming of interviews with other people on the Plaza and some of our group--namely the Triaus, Gorman Young, George Hicho--was also part of her program, later broadcast on cable TV.

The Food Court that opens onto the Plaza proved to be quite nice, with many items to choose from. For those who didn't take the Metro, the free 3-hour parking in the garage beneath the Hyatt Regency was a great boon to all comers.

The Friday night programs are to be repeated through the month of September as late as Oct 3. A brochure of the programs and dates is available by calling 301-652-4988. SEE COMING EVENTS FOR A RETURN VISIT BY PVS ON SEPTEMBER 5.

We thoroughly enjoyed the evening, including the good exercise. Many thanks to June Kelsay for alerting us to and coordinating this event.

AN EVENING WITH THE BROCKMEYERS

On Saturday, August 9, Lorraine and Roland Brockmeyer hosted 24 PVSers at their weekend hideaway condominium, overlooking the Annapolis skyline. The setting was perfect as the complex was located on Spa Creek which flows into the Severn River. The Annapolis Yacht Club Marina was directly in front of the Brockmeyers' quarters and just a dock away from their latest possession, a cabin cruiser named THE Rainey (Lorraine's pet name). The weather was perfect, with a beautiful sunset and cool breezes.

In true PVS tradition, everyone brought appetizers, salads or desserts and the hosts supplied the entree of chicken barbeque with all the trimmings. This was truly another great PVS event and we thank Lorraine and Roland for their hospitality.

TOUR OF THE OASIS WINERY .

On Thursday, August 21st, five of us (Charlie and Sara Huggins, Marvin Haas, Aina Thomas, Norm Engelman) enjoyed a wonderful day touring this internationally acclaimed winery. It's in Hume, VA, in a spectacular setting at the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

We tasted several types of delicious wine including Chardonnay, Blush, Reisling, Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon. They showed us the steps in wine making, how sediment is removed for champagne, and how the bottles are capped. They gave each of us a very nice souvenir wine glass. Charlie, as usual, had everything planned just right.

THE KNEE

by
Ray McKinley

In Chile this column would be called la Rodilla. And a knee pun would, of course, be una Rodilla chiste. But I'm not entirely certain the concept would work in Spanish. It probably wouldn't be very funrodilla. The column might even lose its rodillaoclassical style.

You shoulda been in Chile! It was snowy and quite "chile," with 40 mph winds. During our first three days we received almost 12 feet of snow--and it was August! It was a blizzard reminiscent of the one on Felker's 1990 trip to Val d'Isere. Thereafter, we had perfect powder conditions. Rodillat. (See, it just doesn't work.)

In Chile they stir their tea with little teaknee spoons. (Now isn't that better?)

Penny Hanshaw provided the ultimate example of "one upping" your husband. As hubby Bruce was sailing on Long Island, Penny was one-up; she flew directly over him en route to Chile.

Jean Strickland will soon have her second surgery in 6 months--on her lower back. She was originally scheduled for it in late spring but had to have neck surgery first. Jean is rarin' to get back to skiing. Right on.

On Jean's first post-operation PVS event--to see "The Importance of Being Earnest", the car battery died and she and Bette Walker missed the post-play dinner. They are hungry to try again.

Sal and Lee Mahallati are no longer Washingtonians. After retirement they are firmly ensconced on the waterfront on the Eastern Shore. They are back from a trip to Sal's homeland, Iran. It's expensive, but even small villages now have electricity and water. The Knee contemplated a visit. But after further thought, Iran home.

As we proved, you can ski in summer or winter. But two resorts let you ski over two-thirds of the year! The season at Whistler, in British Columbia, ran 259 days. Not far behind was California's Mammoth Mountain with a 253-day season. Six other resorts had over 200-day seasons: A-Basin (227 days), Killington, Mt.

Bachelor, Squaw Valley, Alpine Meadows in California and, at 201 days, Sunday River, Maine.

Membership news. At 85+ years of age, Franklin Fiske, our Maine man, sent a note that he only skied 21 days last year and felt compelled to withdraw from PVS. We'll miss you on ski trips, Franklin. Please don't you forget to renew.

The Walns provided a great, detailed map to get to their Virginia home for the July ExCom meeting. However, the map didn't show the beltway or D.C. Bill Anderson, traveling with Lu Beale, said he would never find Home Sweet Waln. He did. It only took Lu and Bill two hours--and Richmond was lovely.

To attend the ExCom meeting, Ron and Nancy Ewing came home a day early from a vacation to Alaska--a wise move as this was the first ExCom meeting since Ron joined, that he had a chance to vote. Ron's historic vote was "yes."

A brief note from Fashion Knee. At the ExCom meeting both Marilyn Clarke and Joan Flake had inadvertently worn identical black trousers and beige skis. Cathyshaw, the mortified women were heard to say. Actually, the disaster was somewhat mitigated since Marilyn's two cats are beige and black.

Last season, overall skier days to US ski areas were only about 52.5 million, down some three percent. Indeed, since the late 1970s skier visits have been flat--between 47 and 54 million. And that includes the venomous skiboarders.

Ruth Powers has just attended the Appalachian Trail Annual Meeting. As might be expected, she followed this up with some camping on, of all places, the Appalachian Trail.

A skier friend, who works for NASA, assures me that the following is true. Last month, onboard the Mir Russian Space Station, a collision with a cargo craft depressurized the "Spektr" module. Recent Russian KGB investigations have revealed the true cause: "Objects in the Mir are closer than they appear."

Here is "the rest of the story." Bill Anderson was to write the story of the PVS golf tournament. However, he neglected to sign up for the event and couldn't attend. No "fore" sight.
